Settlement Anticipated By Weekend

Negotiators Report Making Progress In Three-Hour Meeting

NEW YORK—(UP)—Hopes soared today for settlement of the 25-day steel strike before the end of this week.

The Big Three steel and union wage negotiators met for almost three hours yesterday and broke up with the announcement they had "made progress" toward settling the labor dispute which has idled 650,000 steelworkers.

In Pittsburgh, steel industry sources said, "our plans are made to start getting the mills back into operation immediately if a settlement is reached."

The negotiators — four from each side — are scheduled to meet again today in an effort to hammer out a new contract that will end the strike which already has cost the nation $1 billion.

Committee Standing By

David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers of America, has notified the union's 70-man Wage Policy Committee to "stand by" for a Thursday afternoon meeting.

Industry observers interpreted this move as an indication McDonald is confident of a settlement before the end of this week. The Wage Policy Committee has the authority to accept or reject any contract proposal.

The best guesses now are that the union and the nation's major steel producers will agree on a three-year, no strike contract calling for a minimum package increase of 40 cents an hour. The package offer for the first year probably will approach 20 cents an hour.

At Monday's meeting the industry made a new economic offer to the steelworkers union. This offer apparently was substantial enough to trigger hopes of an early settlement.

Deadlocked On Offer

The Steelworkers went on strike at midnight June 30 after negotiations became deadlocked on the industry's offer of a five-year contract calling for a total package increase of 65 cents an hour — 17 2-3 cents the first year alone.

The industry has held out for a long term agreement on the grounds it would bring stability into the economy and enable the companies to formulate long-term plans. The union has rejected the long-term pact idea, stating it

Good Evening!

Steel strike settlement near?

That's the word out of New York as both industry and union report progress after resumption of deadlocked negotiations.

Rather nice, we think, if all the mills would start booming again by August 1. You'd feel like polishing off the summer with a real ball.

Jack Burke, Masters' winner, comes through like an old pro and beats Ted Kroll for the PGA title.

Rather an upset and our poor old Slammin' Sam never seemed to have had a chance. Looks as though this business of golf is becoming a young man's game.

Harold Stassen's stop-Nixon drive halted in a hurry, with Stassen's protégé, Gov. Herter himself, to nominate the vice-president.

You never quite know in politics. But don't think for a moment Stassen's dislike for the young V. P. isn't shared by a great many GOPers from top echelon brackets down.

Here we are . . . at this 11 a.m. hour weather perfect.

Anybody have any real influence with the fellow who makes it? A solid month of nothing but pleasant sunshine is something a lot of folks could buy.

Phil's back on the winning beam again, maybe, after beating the cards last night 7-3 behind Curt Simmons.

We'd still like to see 'em win 20 in a row.

"My dear fellow," she asked scornfully, "what is keeping you out of the Army?"

"The same thing that is keeping you out of the Miss America contest," he replied. "Physical fitness."

One fact about light most people agree on is that it gets here too early in the morning.

Watch your driving.

Officials Expected To Fill Post From 10 Applicants Friday

Lower Southampton Township officials expect to hire a building inspector by Friday, it was announced today by Paul W. Flynn, township manager.

Mr. Flynn said 10 applications have been filed, and reported that some of the applicants will be interviewed today.

The manager also disclosed that examinations for the job of road grader will be given Friday. He announced that the newly purchased caterpillar has arrived and will be used by the new road grader. Four persons have applied for the latter job.

Caterpillar

The caterpillar will be used to improve shoulders of township roads and for plowing snow in the winter among other things, Mr. Flynn explained.

Lower Southampton's building inspector will be required to inspect all new construction in the township. He will set up office in the municipal building and come under the supervision of the township manager.

The township supervisors first issued a call for a qualified road grader and building inspector early this month.

Mr. Flynn explained that the persons best qualified for the two jobs will be hired. "We are looking for men who have had experience and know their work," he said.

Trevose Fire Truck Arrives

Trevose Fire Company's new $26,000 fire truck arrived at the Street road station last night, fire officials announced today.

The new engine, which is equipped with a 750-gallon three-stage pumper, will be entered in the county-wide parade in Trevose, Saturday.

Trevose firemen will be trained in use of the engine, which will be put on several test runs prior to use for fire-fighting.

The huge engine has 1,500 feet of two-and-a-half-inch hose, plus hundreds of feet of connecting lines, and high pressure reels. It is fully equipped, a company spokesman said.

It will also be equipped with radio before being put to use.

Surplus Food Is Arriving

Surplus food for steelworkers idled by the nationwide steel strike is beginning to arrive by the carload in Bucks County, John T. Welsh, chairman of the County Commissioners, announced yesterday.

Distribution will start late this month or early in August, he said. Applications have been received for 8,500 persons, the families and dependents of Fairless Works employees, who signed up in their union headquarters in Morrisville. Normally, the surplus food program serves 6,500 persons in the county.

The commissioners are now seeking a large truck or tractor trailer to haul the food to Morrisville for distribution. The food items will include flour, dried milk, corn meal, butter, rice, dried beans and cheese. Oscar A. Booz, of Edgely, is surplus food administrator for the county commissioners.

Legal Battle

Bristol Man Can't Move In New House

A Bristol man who purchased a house in Dingmans Ferry, Pike County, has found himself confronted by the former owner, an elderly widow who lost it for non-payment of taxes but won't move.

The new owner is Lawrence Houser, of 327 Jackson st. Refusing to leave, Mrs. Hazel Harms, 63, has been living in a tarpaulin tent near the home, cooking over an open fire. She was evicted 11 days ago for not paying $200 in taxes.

Neighbors of Mrs. Harms have hired an attorney for a legal fight to return her to the home, which she occupied for 23 years.

Karl Wagner of Millford, retained by a committee of Mrs. Harms' neighbors, said he would appeal to the Pike County Court as soon as possible to have the forced sale of the home set aside.

Mr. Houser could not be reached for comment this morning. His wife said they were instructed by their lawyer to "give out no information."

Roger Waltjen, attorney for the new owner, said letters to Mrs. Harms asking why she did not pay the 1951 tax bill had gone unanswered.

Entertainer 'Jailed' In Dollar Days Stunt

Joe Scotti, well known local entertainer, was in jail yesterday — but it was all a stunt to promote Bristol's Lucky Dollar Days tomorrow, Friday and Saturday.

The "apprehension" was supposedly made for causing a traffic jam in Bristol's business district as Scotti handed out what appeared to be dollar bills.

The Bristol police kindly cooperated in the stunt. "They picked Scotti up, 'jailed' him, and then released him. This special hoosegow trip gave Scotti plenty of time to tell his story so that an alert reporter could get down all his statements — which just happened to deal with the 'dollar days' this newspaper and the Mill Street Business Association are promoting.

Scotti was "picked up" at the intersection of Wood and Mill streets by Patrolman John Chilliotti and whisked away to police headquarters.

Police examined his strange looking money in wonderment,

New Delay Caused By Disagreement

Highway Department, Township Officials Differ On Cost Issue

Plans for the reconstruction and widening of Second Street pike, Southampton, have hit a snag, the State Highway Department announced today.

The long-planned and talked-about project was to have begun early this summer. Bids have already been opened by highway officials and the contract was tentatively awarded to the Trinity Paving Company, low bidder.

The new delay is the result of a disagreement between the highway department and township officials, according to Walter Bruce, of the State Highway's Ardmore office.

"The township was supposed to stand the cost of property damage," said Mr. Bruce, "but since that agreement township officials have changed and two of the new men won't go along with the agreement."

As a result, Mr. Bruce explained that the State has been asked to stand the property damage costs. "But I don't know whether Harrisburg will go along with the idea," he said.

Wait And See

"We'll just have to wait until we hear from the state," added Mr. Bruce. He said it was impossible to estimate the length of the delay.

The project calls for a complete reconstruction job, including new curbing and sidewalks. The widest section of the new paving will be in the Southampton business district, and has long been desired by Upper Southampton Township businessmen.

Man Jailed, Freed In Staged Lucky Dollar Days Stunt

Joseph Scotti is "picked up" by Patrolman John Chichilotti for handing out strange looking money on Mill street. He was "taken" to police headquarters.

From behind bars, Scotti "explains" his case, while Patrolman Gasper Favoroso examines the bills. Scotti was dressed in a striped prisoners garb before entering the cell.

"Questioned" by Detective Vincent Faragall of Bristol police, Scotti explains his case and tells the benefits of the lucky dollars. He was "released" when the detective heard his story and will return to Mill street to hand out more bills. One out of every ten bills has a special value, Scotti explained.

Bargains Galore

Members of the Mill street Businessmen's Association have banded together to offer the people of Lower Bucks County some of the most sensational bargains ever listed, it was explained. Everyone is invited to journey from store to store and take advantage of the offers all day tomorrow, Friday and Saturday.

Complete listings of the bargains can be found in today's Courier and Times supplement.

After Detective Faragall heard Scotti's story he "released" him. Scotti explained that he'd be handing out the bills from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. Thursday and from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. Friday and from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. on Saturday. Others will distribute the bills during other hours.

One thousand bills will be given out during the special offer. One hundred of them will be lucky.

Police Told Hatchet, Saw Used In Fight

A hatchet, a carpenter's saw and a soda bottle are not to be used to assault a man, at least, that's what Norman Thomas, 53, of Philadelphia, learned early this morning when he was arrested by Bensalem township police.

Thomas was apprehended after he allegedly used these instruments in assaulting Benjamin F. Hunter, also of Philadelphia, at Street road and Route 13 shortly after midnight.

Witnesses told police the two men who were riding in the same car became embroiled in a name-calling bout in front of a service station at the busy intersection.

They said Thomas picked up a carpenter's saw and swung

Bensalem Group Plans Neutral Stand

The newly organized union of Bensalem civic leaders, formed to look into municipal affairs, last night issued a call for more members and stressed its intent to form a neutral education center.

Members agreed with the steering committee's choice of a name, purpose and temporary officers. This group, which hopes to unite all township civic clubs, will be called the Bensalem Civic Council.

Originally formed due to the feud between the township's supervisors and auditors, the new organization decided to take no sides until all information is learned. "We are going to find out the issues between the groups," explained Joseph Rigney, temporary president, "and are not organized to protest the supervisors' actions and support the auditors or vice versa."

Dedication Of Home Slated Tomorrow

William Riempp, chief of Bensalem Township police, will be honored for outstanding achievement by Nottingham VFW Post 7903 at the organization's post dedication, tomorrow at 8 p.m.

The chief will be presented a plaque for the achievement "he has shown throughout Bensalem township," explained Alfred Johnson, public relations director for the post.

Officers of the organization have requested all members of the post and women's auxiliary to attend the dedication and presentation ceremonies.

New Post Home

Formal acceptance of the new post home will highlight activities. The formal ceremonies climax the young organization's hunt for a meeting place, which ended when the developers of Nottingham Village offered a building at Dudley Farms.

The Dudley Farms home is located on Richlieu road at Street road.

Following dedication ceremonies and the plaque presentation a social event will get underway. Music, dancing and refreshments will be featured.

Survivors Testify In McKeon Trial

PARRIS ISLAND, S. C. — UP

The prosecution in the McKeon court martial trial today neared the end of its parade of survivors of the Ribbon Creek death march.

A few more former members of Marine Recruit Platoon 71 were scheduled to testify during today's session about the "discipline" march that was mostly horseplay until the teen-age trainees panicked in the ebb-tide current. Six recruits drowned.

Maj. Charles B. Sevier, the chief trial counsel, said he would permit seven more witnesses after finishing with the survivors. He expects to clean up his direct testimony case by the end of tomorrow's session.

Kin Witness Trial

The accused junior drill instructor who led 74 members of the platoon on the tragic march, S/Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon, now has three of his brothers and one sister in the courtroom daily to bolster his morale. His brothers, Edward, 30, and Francis, 28, both of Worcester, Mass., and his sister, Mrs. Thomas Costello, of New York, arrived yesterday and said they would stay until the trial ends.

The defendant's brother, James, also of Worcester, has been here since the trial began on Monday of last week.

McKeon, 31, a Marine veteran of eight years who saw combat in Korea and who served aboard fighting ships as a seaman in the second world war, could get a maximum prison term of six years and three months on conviction of manslaughter, oppression of troops, and drinking against regulations.

From the 14 survivors who had testified prior to today's session there emerged a picture of a drill instructor grimly determined to whip a lackadaisical group of "goof off" recruits into a platoon with spirit. There has been testimony that he slapped and cuffed recruits in sudden irritation—but that he was not a mean man, did not intend physical harm, and took a strong interest in his men's personal problems.

Relatives, friends, members of the Presbyterian Church and organizations, are invited to services to be conducted by the Rev. Edward G. Yeomans from the Anthony G. Rotondo Funeral Home, 324 Washington street, Bristol, Friday at 2 p.m. Interment will follow in Bristol cemetery. Viewing will be held from the funeral home tomorrow evening.

Scrocca Plans To Appeal

Attorney for Henry R. Scrocca, suspended Bristol Township patrolman, is preparing an appeal to the township Civil Service Commission.

Scrocca was suspended from the force by Police Chief John R. Stewart for a period "not to exceed one year" with the recommendation to the township Board of Commissioners that he be dismissed within the year.

The chief listed insubordination, use of insulting language, making an unlawful or unnecessary arrest, using unnecessary violence on a prisoner and being uncivil to a member of the public as the reasons for the suspension.

John S. Neal, Scrocca's attorney, said he will mail the appeal by registered letter to Clayton Bintliff, secretary of the Civil Service Commission.

Neal said he understands Bintliff is vacationing at Surf City, N. J. Under Civil service regulations a hearing must be held within 10 days of the filing of an appeal, Neal said.

Ruling Given On Tax Law

New legislation taxing industrial machinery does not affect the Fairless Steel Works in Falls township, the Bucks County Commissioners have been informed by County Solicitor Robert C. Valmont.

Seeking to raise assessments at the Fairless Works, the Falls township lawyers had asked to have the steel furnaces assessed. They are now exempt.

Move May Cost Ike's Aide His Post

Massachusetts Gov. Christian A. Herter called a news conference today in Boston to announce formally that he will nominate Richard M. Nixon for re-election as vice president.

The formal announcement stopped a brief but furious "Stop Nixon" drive headed, and apparently staffed entirely, by Harold E. Stassen, presidential disarmament adviser. Rumors circulated freely in Washington that Stassen's move to replace Nixon with Herter was about to cost him his job.

The abortive drive ended abruptly yesterday when National GOP Chairman Leonard Hall announced that Herter would nominate Nixon at next month's Republican convention in San Francisco.

Stassen had proposed Monday that Herter replace Nixon as the GOP vice presidential nominee after earlier notifying President Eisenhower of his intentions. The announcement caused confusion in Republican ranks, until President Eisenhower returned yesterday from the Pan American conference in Panama.

The President stepped from his personal airplane and greeted Nixon warmly but had only a brief handshake for Stassen. Then, later in the day, Hall's announcement that Herter would nominate Nixon apparently settled the matter.

Industry, Union Agree 'In Principle'

Progress Made Toward Ending
25-day Strike

NEW YORK—(UP)—Steel management and union negotiators have agreed on the main outlines of a new contract, it was reported today, and the union said further progress was being made toward a final settlement of the 25-day steel strike.

Eight bargainers, four from each side, met at 11 a. m. (EDT), an hour later than scheduled because of extended talks with their advisers.

David J. McDonald, United Steelworkers president, said "we are continuing to make progress" on writing a new contract that would send 650,000 steelworkers back to work. Their strike July 1 cut off some 86 per cent of the nation's steel output.

Reliable sources said the negotiators have agreed "in principle" on new contract terms. Subcommittees worked on details last night. It was reported the negotiators would try to put some of the agreement into finished form today.

Wage Policy Meeting

The USW's 170-member Wage Policy Committee has been summoned to a 2 p. m. (EDT) meeting Thursday, apparently in the expectation of passing upon a proposed new contract.

Both McDonald and John A. Stephens, U. S. Steel vice president and chief industry negotiator, said no formal settlement offer has been made, but said none is necessary "so long as we are exchanging ideas and adjusting our views."

The negotiators met for almost three hours yesterday and broke up with the announcement they were "making progress."

Some industry sources have predicted the new contract will run for three years and will provide annual direct wage increases of between nine and 10 cents an hour each year.

Steel wages now average about $2.47 an hour.

Rather an upset and our poor old Slamm'ing Sam never seemed to have had a chance. Looks as though this business of golf is becoming a young man's game.

Harold Stassen's stop-Nixon drive halted in a hurry, with Stassen's protégé, Gov. Herter himself, to nominate the vice-president.

You never quite know in politics. But don't think for a moment Stassen's dislike for the young V. P. isn't shared by a great many GOPers from top echelon brackets down.

Here we are... at this 11 a. m. hour weather perfect.

Anybody have any real influence with the fellow who makes it? A solid month of nothing but pleasant sunshine is something a lot of folks could buy.

Phillies back on the winning beam again, maybe, after beating the Cards last night 7-3 behind Curt Simmons.

We'd still like to see 'em win 20 in a row.

"My dear fellow," she asked scornfully, "what is keeping you out of the Army?"

"The same thing that is keeping you out of the Miss America contest," he replied. "Physical fitness."

One fact about light most people agree on is that it gets here too early in the morning.

Watch your driving.

15th Witness Calls McKeon "Most Human"

Not Qualified Swimmer Says He Was Led Into Water

PARRIS ISLAND, S. C.—UP—A survivor of the Parris Island death march testified today that Staff Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon led him into a tidal creek although he had not qualified as a swimmer.

But the witness, Pvt. Hector O. Serantes, told McKeon's court martial trial that he never got into water above his chest during the march into Ribbon Creek the night of April 8 when six men drowned.

Serantes, an Argentinian who said he had been living for 19 months in New York City before joining the Marine Corp, was the 15th survivor of the tragic march to be called as a witness for the prosecution in the McKeon trial.

McKeon, 31, of Worcester, Mass., was junior drill instructor of the platoon he felt needed some stiff disciplinary measures to bring it up to the spit and polish that is leatherneck tradition.

Blinks At Testimony

The sergeant, alternately described during his trial as a humane fatherly-type leader and a man who berated and slapped his men, sat slowly blinking his blue eyes as Serantes testified in broken English.

Serantes described him as "one of the most human sergeants on this island."

McKeon is charged with oppressing troops by leading them into water over their heads, knowing that some of them could not swim. He also is charged with manslaughter and with drinking in violation of regulations.

A "qualified swimmer" as defined in the 10-week training course given recruits at this depot is a man who can swim two length wise laps of the swimming pool.

The prosecutor, Marine Maj. Charles B. Sevier, asked Serantes: "Are you a qualified swimmer?"

"No, sir."

"Your witness," Sevier said to chief defense attorney Emile Zola Berman.

Berman, a noted New York trial lawyer, said (Continued on Page 3, Col. 8)

Conduct Charges Bring $10 Fines

Two Croydon residents were arrested on disorderly conduct charges early this morning and fined $10 and costs each by JP Earl B. Dougherty, of Edgely.

Sgt. Harry Bauer, of Bristol township, told JP Dougherty he found Douglas Lance, of 731 Cedar avenue, and Frank Calvert, of 831 Fourth avenue, corner lounging and drinking beer on a public thoroughfare at 2:45 a. m. today.

The local JP found both men guilty.

The injured, Verna Kirk, 18, of 1239 Pine Grove street, and her brother, James, 16, were taken to Lower Bucks County hospital where Miss Kirk was admitted with possible internal injuries and suffering shock. James Kirk was treated for a laceration and released. Kirk told police his sister tried to avoid striking a pedestrian and ran into the pole. (Courier and Times Photo)

Surplus Food Is Arriving

Surplus food for steelworkers idled by the nationwide steel strike is beginning to arrive by the carload in Bucks County.

John T. Welsh, chairman of the County Commissioners, announced yesterday.

Distribution will start late this month or early in August, he said.

Applications have been received for 8,500 persons, the families and dependents of Fairless Works employees, who signed up in their union headquarters in Morrisville.

Normally, the surplus food program serves 6,500 persons in the county.

The commissioners are now seeking a large truck or tractor trailer to haul the food to Morrisville for distribution. The food items will include flour, dried milk, corn meal, butter, rice, dried beans and cheese.

Oscar A. Booz, of Edgely, is surplus food administrator for the county commissioners.

Sgt. Harry Bauer, of Bristol township, told JP Dougherty he found Douglas Lance, of 731 Cedar avenue, and Frank Calvert, of 831 Fourth avenue, corner lounging and drinking beer on a public thoroughfare at 2:45 a. m. today.

The local JP found both men guilty.

Legal Battle

Bristol Man Can't Move Into House

A Bristol man who purchased a house in Dingmans Ferry, Pike County, has found himself confronted by the former owner, an elderly widow who lost it for non-payment of taxes but won't move.

The new owner is Lawrence Houser, of 327 Jackson st. Refusing to leave, Mrs. Hazel Harms, 63, has been living in a tarpaulin tent near the home, cooking over an open fire. She was evicted 11 days ago for not paying $200 in taxes.

Neighbors of Mrs. Harms have hired an attorney for a legal fight to return her to the home, which she occupied for 23 years.

Karl Wagner of Milford, retained by a committee of Mrs. Harms' neighbors, said he would appeal to the Pike County Court as soon as possible to have the forced sale of the home set aside.

Mr. Houser could not be reached for comment this morning. His wife said they were instructed by their lawyer to "give out no information."

Roger Waltjen, attorney for the new owner, said letters to Mrs. Harms asking why she did not pay the 1951 tax bill had gone unanswered.

Entertainer 'Jailed' In Dollar Days Stunt

Joe Scotti, well known local entertainer, was in jail yesterday — but it was all a stunt to promote Bristol's Lucky Dollar Days tomorrow, Friday and Saturday.

The "apprehension" was supposedly made for causing a traffic jam in Bristol's business district as Scotti handed out what appeared to be dollar bills.

The Bristol police kindly cooperated in the stunt. They picked Scotti up, "jailed" him, and then released him. This special house-gown trip gave Scotti plenty of time to tell his story so that an alert reporter could get down all his statements — which just happened to deal with the "dollar days" this newspaper and the Mill Street Business Association are promoting.

Scotti was "picked up" at the intersection of Wood and Mill streets by Patrolman John Chichilli and whisked away to police headquarters.

Police examined his strange looking money in wonderment.

Fire Victim On 'Poor List'

James Lyzskowski, 56, of Philadelphia, who was burned seriously in a Bensalem township housefire on Friday evening, remained on the Lower Bucks County hospital "poor list" today, hospital officials said.

Lykowsky suffered third degree burns of the entire upper half of his body. He told fire and police officials that he was sitting in a chair asleep when the fire started. He could shed no light on the origin of the blaze.

Ike's Aide Still Supports Gov. Herter

Washington Rumors Have Ike's Aide About To Lose Job

WASHINGTON — (UP)—Harold E. Stassen today accused Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall of trying to force Vice President Richard M. Nixon on the GOP national convention delegates without giving them a free choice.

Stassen declared he will continue to fight for Massachusetts Gov. Christian A. Herter as GOP vice presidential candidate despite Herter's rug-pulling announcement in Boston today that he will formally put Nixon's name in nomination at the convention opening in San Francisco Aug. 20.

Rumors spread here that Stassen would be fired or eased out as President Eisenhower's disarmament adviser. But White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said today he knew of no plans for Stassen to leave the government.

Stassen served notice that he is continuing his dump-Nixon campaign in a letter to 20 Republican members of the House who had demanded his resignation as President Eisenhower's disarmament adviser.

"My action would not have been necessary," Stassen wrote, "if the national chairman Hall had not endeavored to foreclose the choice of the convention delegates before they met, contrary to Republican policy."

Marilyn May Convert

LONDON—UP—Marilyn Monroe today refused to comment on reports that she planned to be converted to the Jewish religion.

"I never comment on religion or politics," she said. "For me religion is a personal matter."

The Daily Express said today that the blonde Hollywood star planned to adopt her husband's faith on their return to the United States. The newspaper quoted an unidentified East London rabbi as its source.

Marilyn's husband, playwright Arthur Miller, also refused to talk on the subject. "No comment," he replied tersely to newsmen. Earlier he had promised a full statement.

The newspaper quoted the rabbi as saying that Rabbi Robert Goldberg, of New Haven, Conn., presented Miss Monroe with five books of Jewish law before the movie star left the United States for London. Goldberg officiated at the religious ceremony which followed Miss Monroe's civil marriage to Miller.

"Of course, she already knows that in a Jewish home the man is absolute master, but she told Rabbi Goldberg that she is pleased that this is so," the rabbi told the Express.

Pitt Steelers Sign Bristol Grigger

Good News

Township Plans Swimming Area

Bristol township residents may have a public swimming site before the end of the summer.

The Bristol township recreation board at its meeting last night was informed a pollution report on one of the smaller lakes at the Langenfelder tract was forthcoming within the next few days.

Commissioner Elbert Kohli, a board member, said he had samples of the water taken from one of the lakes last week and if this report is favorable he requested the recreation board take immediate action toward establishing the swimming area this year.

Negative Answer Kohli said he felt sure the Board of Commissioners would aid both materially and financially in this project. Louis R. Hahn, board of recreation chairman, said he felt sure that the school board would also aid the project.

Mr. Hahn stated that previous reports on the large lake, located at the site, have been received and a negative answer had always been given when this area was sought for swimming activities.

The latest site, Mr. Hahn said, is located off Bath road and adjacent to the O'Connor company building. "The lake is land-locked and spring fed," Mr. Hahn said.

In other business, the board approved the setting aside of Tuesday evening as teen dance nights at the George Taylor school, Croydon, and the Thomas Jefferson school, in Levittown.

A trial dance, which was held last night at the Thomas Jefferson school inaugurated the new program.

Man Jailed, Freed In Staged Lucky Dollar Days Stunt

Joseph Scotti is "picked up" by Patrolman John Chichilli for handing out strange looking money on Mill street. He was "taken" to police headquarters.

From behind bars, Scotti "explains" his case, while Patrolman Gasper Favoroso examines the bills. Scotti was dressed in a striped prisoners garb before entering the cell.

"Questioned" by Detective Vincent Faragalli of Bristol police, Scotti explains his case and tells the benefits of the lucky dollars. He was "released" when the detective heard his story and will return to Mill street to hand out more bills. One out of every ten bills has a special value, Scotti explained.

Scotti explained that persons who received lucky dollars could take them to the stores marked on the bills and receive a dollar's worth of merchandise. He said the bills will be given away again tomorrow, Friday and Saturday.

Members of the Mill street Businessmen's Association have banded together to offer the people of Lower Bucks County some of the most sensational bargains ever listed, it was explained. Everyone is invited to journey from store to store and take advantage of the offers all day tomorrow, Friday and Saturday.

Complete listings of the bargains can be found in today's Courier and Times supplement.

After Detective Faragalli heard Scotti's story he "released" him. Scotti explained that he'd be handing out the bills from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. Thursday, from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. Friday and from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. on Saturday. Others will distribute the bills during other hours.

One thousand bills will be given out during the special offer. One hundred of them will be lucky.

Scotti is a local entertainer, known well in the Philadelphia area. He is a dramatic tenor and will sing as he hands out the dollars. Also well known for his emcee work, Scotti is appearing at the Wedge in Philadelphia with Julie Gibson. He has been there 88 consecutive weeks.

Scotti is available for club entertainment. He is employed with the Courier and Times circulation department, and drives truck No. 15.

New System Of Collecting Township Permit Fees To Be Recommended

Police Told Hatchet, Saw Used In Fight

A hatchet, a carpenter's saw and a soda bottle are not to be used to assault a man, at least, that's what Norman Thomas, 53, of Philadelphia, learned early this morning when he was arrested by Bensalem township police.

Thomas was apprehended after he allegedly used these instruments in assaulting Benjamin F. Hunter, also of Philadelphia, at Street road and Route 13 shortly after midnight.

Witnesses told police the two men who were riding in the same car became embroiled in a name-calling bout in front of a service station at the busy intersection.

They said Thomas picked up a carpenter's saw and swung at Hunter. Hunter was struck on the head by the jagged-edge tool. The two men then disappeared to the rear of a building where the fight continued.

Police arrived at the scene and found Hunter lying on the ground bleeding profusely. The hatchet, saw and soda bottle were found lying nearby.

Hunter was rushed to Lower Bucks County hospital where he received stitches to close the bleeding wounds. He was then released.

Thomas was committed to the Bristol Borough jail to await a hearing before Justice of the Peace Josephine Morris later today. The charge against Thomas was aggravated assault and battery.

Rogers Sees Need For Cashier Plan

Bristol Township Commissioner Albert H. Rogers last night said he would recommend a new system for uniform and accurate collection of all township fees after hearing numerous complaints of discrepancies in the amounts charged for curb and sidewalk construction permits.

Commissioner Rogers said the township needed a "cashier" system which would provide for written receipts for township records after a special township committee met with some 30 residents of Belardley Tract.

Rogers is chairman of the committee which also includes Commissioners Eugene Kehoe, Lawrence Mervine and John S. Gallagher.

An active member of local No. 5298, United Steel Workers of America, Mr. Smollett attended Syracuse and Cornell universities where he studied courses in sociology and government.

Other members of the Planning Board are: John Banko of Levittown, secretary; Martin Piersol of Fairless Hills, treasurer; William Prentiss of Levittown; and Charles Simon of Fallsington.

Seeing Levittown

By LYDIA BOGANE
A woman doctor from India, dressed in her native costume, attracted attention as she walked in the Levittown Shopping Center last week. A recent arrival to this country, she is practicing medicine at Burlington County Hospital in New Jersey.

One lover of practical jokes called here to say that Jacob Herwing of 77 Roundwood Lane was celebrating his 100th birthday, and had scores of grandchildren, and great-grandchildren. We called Jacob with our heartiest congratulations. "Thanks anyway," his wife said, "but my husband will only be 35 next October." Well, Jacob may still live to be a hundred. We'll wait.

Little Lannie Segal, whose father Joseph works hard for the Levittown Civic Association (as an officer and membership chairman) hasn't too good an idea what the LCA is, but has heard it around her house often enough. As he mulled over some other papers last week, the three year old asked dejectedly, "Are you working on that LCA thing again?" The Segals live at 24 Rainbow lane.

Group Plans Neutral Stand

The newly organized union of Bensalem civic leaders, formed to look into municipal affairs, last night issued a call for more members and stressed its intent to form a neutral education center.

Members agreed with the steering committee's choice of a name, purpose and temporary officers. This group, which hopes to unite all township civic clubs, will be called the Bensalem Civic Council.

Originally formed due to the feud between the township supervisors and auditors, the new organization decided to take no sides until all information is learned. "We are going to find out the issues between the groups," explained Joseph Rigney, temporary president, "and are not organized to protest the supervisors' actions and support the auditors or vice versa."

McKeon Trial

"The first time, everybody thought they were kidding . . . making funny things," Serantes replied.

He said he never heard any cries of "help" and never saw any man in trouble "because I was in one of the last squads."

Other witnesses at the trial have told of hearing such calls for help as the men became panicky in the waters after one of their number slipped.

The accused junior drill instructor who led 74 members of the platoon on the tragic march, S/Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon, now has three of his brothers and one sister in the courtroom daily to bolster his morale. His brothers, Edward, 30, and Francis, 28, both of Worcester, Mass., and his sister, Mrs. Thomas Costello, of New York, arrived yesterday and said they would stay until the trial ends.

The defendant's brother, James, also of Worcester, has been here since the trial began on Monday of last week.
